Not since 1883 has there been so huge a deficit in the surplus that the law requires banks to carry on money on deposit. At that time it became necessary to issue bank certificates. In 1902 and in 1803 deficits occurred, but they were not so heavy.

Bankers account for the present deficit by saying that there has been a tremendous demand for money to move the crops in the West, and that this, together with the big speculation in stocks, has drained the New York money market.
